

Revs. Gallaudet, Syle to be honored Sunday

This Sunday marks a very special day for Gallaudet University and the deaf community in general. The Washington Cathedral will honor the Revs. Thomas Gallaudet and Henry Winter Syle, pioneers in the Episcopal Church who played important roles in the lives of deaf people, with a special service.

The 11 a.m. service, which will signify the inclusion of Gallaudet and Syle into the Episcopal Church's liturgical calendar, will be conducted by the Rev. Jay L. Croft, the University's Episcopal/Anglican chaplain on campus. This is the first time that a deaf person has conducted a service at the Cathedral.

Other participants in the service will be Gallaudet President King Jordan, officers of the Episcopal Conference of the Deaf, and clergy and leaders of local congregations of deaf people. A similar service will be held the same day at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco.

The services will be presented in speech and sign language, and the public is invited to attend. The Caption-America Company will donate real-time captioning services.

By being included in the church's liturgical calendar, an honor that commemorates people who have done outstanding work for the church, Gallaudet and Syle will be remembered at approximately the same time yearly in Episcopal Church services.

Rev. Gallaudet (1822-1902) was the eldest son of the Rev. Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet and the elder brother of Gallaudet University's first president, Edward Miner Gallaudet. He founded many churches for deaf people, beginning with St. Ann's Church for the Deaf in New York City in 1852.

Rev. Syle (1846-1902) bears the distinction of being the first deaf person to be ordained in any church.

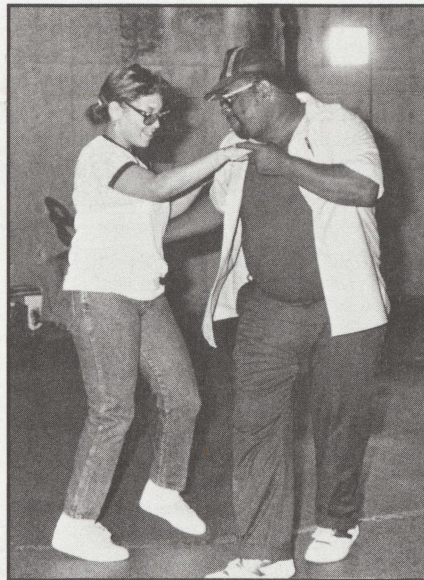

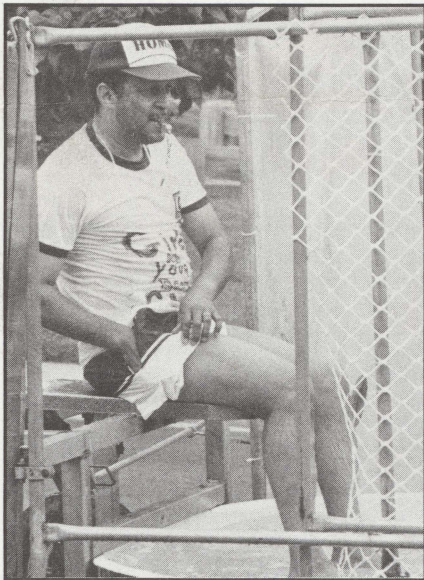

After considerable controversy, he was ordained as a deacon in Philadelphia in 1876 and was advanced to the priesthood in 1883. A bust of Syle is in the Hall of Fame collection in Chapel Hall.

Gallaudet's Department of TV, Film, and Photography will videotape the service as a feature for the program "Deaf Mosaic."

The Washington Cathedral is located at Massachusetts and Wisconsin Avenues, in Northwest D.C.

Physical Plant staffers unwind at Appreciation Day celebration

Gallaudet's Physical Plant Department (PPD) staff members enjoyed an afternoon away from their normally heavy workloads Aug. 11 at the PPD's annual Staff Appreciation Day.

Following an awards ceremony in the MSSD auditorium, staff adjourned to the low level of the school's parking garage for barbecued chicken and hamburgers, horseshoes and volleyball, dance and pie eating contests, and more good times.

The annual picnic is given for PPD employees by the department to show the campus' gratitude for the hard work that they give to the University.

This year, more than 40 awards were given to outstanding PPD employees. At the top of the list were nine "Employees of the Year":

- Maintenance Services—Joe Curtis, who started as a custodian in 1979 and is now a mechanic III in the HVAC Shop.
- Special Projects—Dennis Naber, who started in 1983 as a mechanic IV and is now a carpenter I.

- Northwest Services—Bernie Jones, who began his career in 1980 as a carpenter II and is now a carpenter I.

- Custodian of the Year—Elsie Houtman, who started as a custodian in 1969.

- Utilities Services—Scott Gordon, an apprentice engineer in the Utilities Plant, who started in 1987.

- Grounds Services—Henry McGleen, a two-time winner in this category, who started as a grounds-keeper in 1981.

- Supervisor—Ray Moore, also a two-time winner, who has been PPD's grounds supervisor since 1980.

- Special Achievement—Kenneth Massie, who won his award for Outstanding Service in Energy Management. Massie started in 1977 as an electrician and is presently an energy conservation coordinator.

- Support Services—June Bartholow, who came to PPD from the Registrar's Office in 1985 and is now senior coordinator.

A faculty and staff seminar, "Usage of Non-Manual Signals," will be taught by Brenda Mitchiner daily Nov. 6-17 from noon to 12:50 p.m. in Kendall Hall, Room 104.

To register for classes, employees must fill out the registration forms sent to them through campus mail or pick one up at the Department of Sign Communication, Kendall Hall, Room 201. Forms must be signed by employees' supervisors and received in Kendall Hall by Sept. 8. Telephone registration is not permitted.

Freshman Michael Mazzaroppi of New York (right) and Rosaria Arcaro of Texas (second from right) were among 57 students who attended the New Signer's Program's (NSP) welcoming ceremonies with their families in Chapel Hall. NSP ended Aug. 17.

Announcements

Effective Aug. 20, patrons and employees of the Gallaudet University library will have to refrain from eating, drinking, or smoking anywhere in the library, classrooms, or common areas of the Merrill Learning Center. The Dean's Advisory Board, the Academic Affairs Management Team, and the library's Management Committee all endorsed the new policy as the best way to protect the University's Special Collection on Deafness, videotapes, VCRs, computers, and furniture from the damaging effects of smoke, and the insects, mold, vermin, bacteria, and fungi that are attracted to areas where food and drink are found. The new policy will also provide a smoke-free environment for patrons.

The library will give the following tours of its resources: Monday-Tuesday, Aug. 12-29, 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.; Wednesday, Aug. 30, 9 a.m. and noon; Thursday, Aug. 31, 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.; and Friday, Sept. 1, 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. All tours will meet at the information desk on the middle level of the library. Registration is not required. Tours will be offered through mid-September.

Among Ourselves

Dr. Sharon Barnartt, associate professor of sociology in the Department of Sociology and Social Work, has been awarded a Fulbright Teaching Grant by the Council for the International Exchange of Scholars. Barnartt will teach courses in the sociology of deafness at the University of Zimbabwe in Harare, Zimbabwe, from October 1989 until July 1990.

Loraine DiPietro, director of the National Information Center on Deafness, and Dr. Deborah Sonnestrahl, associate professor in the Art Department, both served as judges in the Deaf Heritage Week Logo Contests held recently by the Council on Government's Library Service to the Deaf Interest Group. The winning logo was created by Heather Bigio, a ninth-grade student at Herbert Hoover Junior High School. It will be used to promote Deaf Heritage Week programs to be held Dec. 3-9 in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Northern Virginia.

Science teacher Joyce Doblmeier of the Model Secondary School for the Deaf received the Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf's Outstanding Teacher Award for excellence in education of deaf students in June.

Memorial planned for Rev. Richards

A memorial service is being planned at Gallaudet for the Rev. Raymond Richards, a former Catholic chaplain for the campus and a faculty member in the Department of Philosophy and Religion, who died on July 12.

According to the Rev. Jerry Trancone, the campus' present Catholic chaplain, Rev. Richards died at his home in Brooklyn, N.Y., following an illness that he contracted while in Rome earlier in the month.

Richards, a native of Brooklyn, served the Gallaudet community from 1973-78. He left the University to become an associate priest for a church in the Brooklyn Diocese, and later became priest of another church in the diocese.

Rev. Trancone said that the memorial service will be held in Chapel Hall next month. A specific date will be announced to the campus community in On the Green in a later issue.
